

God, who changes caterpillars into butterflies, also transitions sinners into saints.
 2nd Corinthians 5:17:
 “Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, the new creation has come: The old is gone, the new has come!”

Monarch butterfly migrations occur across North America like bird migrations. Each year massive numbers migrate to and from sites in the mountainous areas in Central Mexico or the Western Coast of California. Large numbers begin migrating in Southern Canada and areas of the U.S. from September to October. By November, overwhelming numbers reach Mexico for the winter months.

Monarchs are said to fill the sky “with orange.” They remain at their overwintering sites and form clusters on tree trunks and branches. Thousands may fill one tree.

Pine, Fir and Cedar trees are frequently chosen for roosting. They remain until March when the northern migration begins. No one Monarch completes the entire journey. Butterflies lay eggs during their northern migration. Monarchs migrate to Wisconsin in May.
